Cookie Notice

Last updated: 30 August 2026

This Cookie Notice explains how cookies and similar technologies may be used when you visit the Novar Network website at www.novarnetwork.org.

1. What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files that a website may store on your device. They can help a website function correctly, remember certain settings, understand how the website is used, or provide content and services supplied by third parties.

2. Cookies used by Novar

The Novar website is hosted using Webador. Webador states that its standard website cookies are technical or functional cookies needed for the website to operate. These include session and technical cookies used to support website functionality and security. Webador also states that its system log files may record technical information such as visitors' IP addresses and that these logs are automatically deleted after 30 days.

3. Non-essential cookies and third-party services

Novar may use third-party services or embedded content from time to time, for example analytics, video, maps or social media services. These services may use their own cookies or similar technologies. Where non-essential cookies or similar technologies are used, Novar will provide appropriate information and, where required by law, ask for your consent before they are used.

4. Your choices

You can control or delete cookies through your browser settings. If Novar uses a cookie consent mechanism for non-essential cookies, you will be able to make your choice through that mechanism. Where consent is required, continuing to browse the website will not by itself be treated as consent.

5. Changes to this notice

Novar's website and the services connected to it may change as the organisation develops. We may therefore update this Cookie Notice when our use of cookies or similar technologies changes. The date at the beginning of this notice will be updated when significant changes are made.

6. More information

For information about how Novar handles personal information more generally, please see our Privacy Policy.
